

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A client machine collects information involved in the client machine, transmits the collected information to a server machine, and receives information provided from the server machine in accordance with the information transmitted from a client side transmission section to the server machine. A server machine stores in a predetermined providing information database information to be provided for a client machine in association with information to be transmitted from the client machine, receives information transmitted from the client machine, reads from the providing information database information to be provided for the client machine, which is associated with information involved in the received information from the client machine, and transmits the information read from said providing information database to the client machine.